weequahic high school
newark, new jersey

foreword

Because the spirit of the Red man has been instilled in all phases of our high school life, we of Weequahic are bound by the colorful traditions of the Indians. As we blaze our trails into the sunset we may forget the ties, sentimentalities, and hard-won eagle feathers that were so all-important during our formative years. But somehow words like Calumet, Wigwam and Sagamore will always evoke the memories of Weequahic that spell the confidence and eagerness of our youth.

The American Indian remains today as a monument of inherent fortitude and valor. His vivid history is resplendent with tales of his resourcefulness in carving out a home and culture. In the shrieking, wild warwhoop and brandished tomahawk — the last surges of hope in defiance of the strong pale strangers — resounds the story of his faith and stamina.

The might of the Indian may be only a legend recorded in our libraries, but his noble qualities live on. The wise decisions of our representatives made around the O.B.A. council fire, the grave judgments passed down by our Sagamore Court, and our defeated but still fighting athletic teams reflect his virtues.

This is a chronicle of our class's aspirations and dreams as well as an account of our academic and extra-curricular accomplishments. Thus the Indian symbolizes the spirit of our ten united tribes, our school, and our Legend.

CAROLE BAUMGARTEN

In the course of our four years at Weequahic, the most important single influence upon our class has been that exerted by Mrs. Rous. Many of us have known her as our teacher, all of us have come in contact with her as our adviser. Many times, we have felt the need of a steady hand to guide us through the maze of difficulties confronting us, either as individuals, or as a group. More often than not, Mrs. Rous has assumed the burden of this work. She has aired all of our suggestions and requests. She has employed her efforts patiently, unstintingly, and effectively in our behalf. Undoubtedly, the pleasure of our years at Weequahic has been multiplied many times by the benefits which we were able to obtain through her generous aid and careful guidance.

To her go our thanks for helping to educate us, for guiding and representing our youthful wills and decisions and, above all, for providing that closeness and friendliness which have made our relationship with her an irreplaceably wonderful one.

In fond appreciation for all the valuable things which she has imparted to us and done for us, we, the graduating Class of June, 1955 dedicate this Legend, our class book, to Mrs. Sadie Z. Rous, our adviser.

Forty-three years have passed since the day I stood before a class in a New York City high school for the first time — my knees a little trembly and my innards somewhat fluttery.

For the munificent sum of four dollars a day I taught five classes, took charge of a study hall, helped coach the basketball team, coached the debating team for a public appearance before some 3000 people, and did not leave school until 4 p.m. or later every day.

When I came to Newark in February 1916, there were still classrooms, in which the teachers' desks were placed on platforms as symbols of the teachers' authority and importance.

Newark had just entered upon the Great Experiment of the commission form of government, for which great hopes of civic improvement were held out. 1916 was also the year in which Newark celebrated the 250th anniversary of its founding and I can still remember our parade along Broad Street in which the teachers marched school by school, the men dressed in white flannel trousers, blue jackets and stiff-brimmed straw hats.

The school was still a rather selective institution but it had its usual groupings of good, mediocre and poor students. Your parents and grandparents were on the whole a more serious lot with a somewhat harder row to hoe than you have. Money and jobs were scarcer, work was longer and harder, and fewer families had a back-log of savings to fall back upon.

However, each generation, as I look back, has adapted itself fairly successfully to the changed conditions facing it; and I feel confident that you will do the same. You will learn to use the greater mobility, the greater material wealth, the greater democracy, which you enjoy, with increasing judgment and self-control. And, twenty years from today, you too, will say about your children, "What is the present generation coming to?"

youth

Youth is the burning song of life,
The haunting memory of dreams gone by.
It is the time of hope and strife,
On wings of joy it seems to fly.

Youth comes but once, and then
Vanishes in distant night.
And gone, it never comes again
But takes refuge in mystic flight.

Youth knows no bounds —
The distant peaks it shall climb.
For once found,
It is the ecstasy sublime.

So, drink of youth, like heady wine
Savor it at any cost.
Youth is God's gift divine,
It comes but once and then is lost.

fearless trail

Yes, these four years have so quickly flown,

It's time to leave and face alone

The laughs and tears the years will hold,

The triumphs, failures, joys untold.

Oh, yes, Weequahic, we will miss you;

The growing pains you saw us through,

The dreams we've built within your walls,

But now, we must leave you, the whole world calls

Us, its youth and strength. With but few fears

We'll boldly conquer these trying years.

For the things you have taught us, foundations you've laid

Have helped us face them, unafraid.

BETTE SUE LOEBEL

the path

By the great oak on the hilltop
Lay a wigwam tall and mighty,
And the Indians in the wigwam
Held a goal both high and noble.
For unlike the great Apache
Or the warlike, savage Pawnee,
These braves lived in peace and plenty.
Spears and arrows laid asunder
They prayed to their God devoutly.
Not for beads and bags of wampum,
Not for plunder of their enemies,
Not for victory in the battle,
But they prayed for skill in learning,
For the courage of conviction,
For the heart to go on further,
For the taste of peace eternal,
For the guidance of their elders.
Yea, they saw the bluebird flying
Ever striving toward the sunset,
And they dreamt of higher learning
Of the goal they held in sight.
And they prayed for the wisdom
Only He could give His children.
Yet they heard the soft breeze whisper
"Go ye, seek ye now a chieftain."
So they sought an able leader,
One whose hand could guide them
onward,
Onward toward their goal so sacred.
Thus they heard the South wind calling,
"To you, all my dearest children
Send I now a chieftain mighty,
Joel Kampf, he, the brave one.
So the Indians thanked the good wind
For the gift of such a noble.

Then they saw the brooklet trickling,
And they asked the rolling waters
For a youth of strength and honor.
And the brooklet answered softly,
"Lo, and for your labor and service
Like a bonfire, warm and brilliant,
David Berger, I do send thee."
And the braves prayed hard and labored
Toiled among the books of learning,
Played, yet, all their games with vigor;
Then there came an able girl scribe.
Maiden of the gentle Indians,
Bette Loebel, wise and winsome.
Still they sought among the tribesmen
For a scout to guard the wampum,
Keep the riches of the Indians.
And Frank Vaccarella was wampum keeper.
Then the braves watched the sunset,
Ever toiling, ever striving;
And they yearned for tribal joy-dance,
Thus the Indians gave a play.
Came the maidens Miller, Lipis,
Came the redoubtable Joel Kampf
To soothe and entertain the elders,
With Finkel, Chase and Baumgarten,
'Till the braves yelped joy-whoops gayly.
Yea, the Indians played the games well
And to cheer them on toward victory
Came the twirlers Marla Meisner, lovely maidens Joan Goodman
Marcia Tannenbaum juggling batons,
Anita Wasserman, Sandy Rems,
Wilma Michael and Cohens (Carol and Isobel),

And leaders Muriel Reider and Rhoda
Hoffman,

In their skins of deer and buckskin;
Wildly pranced the mad cheerleaders
Joan Schwartz and Judy Miller;
And the captains of the winsome
cheerers,

Enid Warner and Jackie Matten.
Came the moon of the bright new year
Telling them to keep their chieftain,
For Joel Kampf ruled well and wisely;
And the words of their elders
Said "Keep your scribe Bette Loebel;
Let Vaccarella hold the wampum."
Softly passed the breeze among them,
Telling all the peaceful Indians
Joel Kampf again shall lead you,
Select but one new warrior, Bob Pearl,
Loebel yet shall hold the record,
Adding new blood to the council.
Old faithful Schnee shall guard the wampum.

Thus the braves all listened wisely
To the counsel of their elders,
And the guidance of Mrs. Rous.
Then the moon crossed once more
And they yearned for a joy-dance—
So they held the 4B Hop.
Yea, the braves danced with vigor
To the beat of the tom-toms
In the glory of the moonlight
'Neath the luster of the stars.
Peacefully they lived and labored,
And with joy they met each dawn,
Yet to choose again Joel Kampf,
Yet to honor Pearl and Loebel

And to keep the wise Vic Schnee.
Thus the earth beheld its splendor
Met the sun with joy each morning.
Then the Indians sought the counsel
Of the Maiden Carol Lipis,
Of the brave David Berger,
Of the able Jack Greenfeder,
In such learned council assembled,
Jackie Matten smoked the peacepipe.
And the Indians chose their judges
Guiding wisely Sagamore justice:
Big braves Werbel, Schwartz, and Borden,

Sages just, invoked our path-laws.
Yes, the years proved fruitful
As the cherished seeds of learning
Grew to heights of golden glory.
Still the wigwam stood in splendor
'Neath the sky of deepest azure,
'Neath the sun of golden glory,
'Neath the moon of lustrous beauty.
Yea, they dwelt in peace and gladness,
Played their games with skill and daring
Ever, ever, striving onward.
For the breeze whispered softly
"Seek your goal and ye shall find it,
Hold your dream and it shall be.
Listen, listen, to your elders
For they hold a greater wisdom."
So the tribesman wisely listened,
Followed paths of skill and learning,
Planted seeds of truth and knowledge
'Til these seeds did finally thrive.
For these wise Weequahic Indians
Became the Class of June '55.

JUNE MAD

last will and testament

We, the departing class of the moon of June, 1955, though we be short of wampum, do bequeath the following to our wigwam and our beloved chieftains.

To Mrs. Rous.....a supply of blank petitions for her next graduating class.

To Mr. Bucharest.....a closet of teen-age plays so he won't be driven "June Mad" looking for one.

To Miss Undritz.....all the four leaf clovers on the front lawn of Weequahic High.

To Mrs. Deutsch..... *

To Mrs. Jennings.....a perfect Torch Day, no song sheets, chewing gum, or hands in pockets.

To Mr. Castelluccio.....a 100 year supply of instant coffee to be sweetened with molecules of love.

To Mrs. Birnbaum.....a cotton-padded ruler.

To Mr. D. Stamelman.....a class with "the finer points."

To Mr. L. Stamelman.....35 books.

To Miss Driscoll.....the question, "Should we or should we not?"

To Mr. Gross and
Mr. Gobeille.....for their kindness and assistance, a gold plated Legend.

To the cooking class.....a year's supply of food on the home freezer plan—$1 down and 50 years to pay—

To the girls' and boys' rooms.....ashtrays.

To Weequahic.....our continuing devotion.

By affixing this seal on the 22nd day of the 6th full moon, in the nineteen hundred and fifty-fifth year of the great white father, we irrevocably declare this to be our Last Will and Testament.

remember

Should you ask me whence these stories,
Whence these legends and traditions,
With the odors, high-styled sweat suits,
With the lockers, crammed conditions
With the pin-ups hung inside them,
With the busy sale of passes,
With the buzz of many students
Giggling, grunting, late for classes.
Swimming pool and Samuel Fink,
With the rush for the elevator,
So it's you who stole my Calumet,
With my water gun, I'll get you later!
With the lunch room, I hate it (I eat there)
With the assembly programs, "get in your own seat,"
The sports and the cheering, the losing, the winning
The beating of Hillside — At last, what a feté!
With the stairway, up and down ones,
With the students, who go up on the down,
With the labs and the lovely aromas,

The O.B.A. dances, the orange and brown.
With selling of tickets — Play, Picnic, Petitions,
The fun we all had when we went as a gang,
With the linguists we've sheltered, who sit in our classes,
Je parle anglais, francais, et un très peu de slang!

I should answer, I should tell you,
From the classrooms and the teachers,
From the students, and the hallways,
Untermann field and outdoor bleachers.

I repeat them as I lived them
With my classmates, with my friends.
I recall them and enjoy them,
Legends, stories, traditions, and trends.
My high school days will not be forgotten,
The wonderful days that commenced in September,
And I'll live them again when all things turn mem'ries
Although far from the wigwam
I shall always . . .

Remember!

ENID WARNER

though our dwellings are different we travel the same plains.

bucharest's braves

Leading the tribe of Indians in Wigwam 101 is Dave Matthews and his assistant Sandy Weber. According to Indian tradition, men have the say in most matters, but not in this tent! Our tribe of wild Injuns takes orders from its able secretary, the first woman to dictate to her superior.

Among Bucharest's Braves can be found Alvin Barr, whose distinct job as custodian was unanimously chosen by the tribe. Big honor, Ugh! Ugh!

Paper Squaws, Elaine Dodis and Iris Epstein, are found each morning selling "The New York Times" to illiterate members of wigwam with results that will remain unspoken. This bartering continues until Lenny Houston pleads to generous braves for wampum to support needy Indians in the Happy Hunting Grounds at Syd's, Chancellor Avenue, U.S.A.

Before long the serene atmosphere of the tent changes as wild cries are heard (from friendly sources) as Arlene Williams and Darlene Wolff approach with the braves' favorite newspaper — the Calumet. Beads, trinkets, wampum, are offered in trade for it, but bows and arrows suddenly stop the flow of papers. Menacing Matthews, our chief, is enraged for not receiving his Calumet first.

About this time Squaw Arlene Bonashefski enters the teepee in a flurry of excitement as the door of the tent closes. It is now 8:30 and "Chief Play-um-Basketball" Walter Karney is found discussing sporting events over peace pipe with Bob Kerner and Ed Brown. Brave Joe Greenblatt takes his place in front of fire and prepares to sell O.B.A. cards to Richie Chopin and Ralph Weisinger, only they not buy-um.

News of the surrounding tribes is told to Muriel Lugash, Dolores Weber and Elaine Hochberg by Paul Lebowitz and Sonnie Lipshitz, heap big members of Class Council. Squaw Lynn Sissman relates tales of Legend Staff meetings to Dolores Colt, Barbara Latore, and Joan Newman.

Amongst this uproar of commotion are heard the voices of Arlene Bach and Ellie Goldstein discussing the latest hair styles at "Georgia's War Paint Parlor." Laughter is heard across the tent coming from none other than Anna Boyle. Sandy Lehrhoff and Elaine Dodis, our banker and auditor, add to the noise and merriment. Sandy Kowaloff, Arlene Schulman, and Cynthia Ellenport are currently discussing the elopement of a brave and his steadyite who are supposedly honeymooning at Bagel Beach, a famous Indian resort near Lox Harbor.

Great Injun producer and playwright Cecil B. De Bucharest is giving the day's notices to attentive braves who listen closely in fear of being scalped.

Finally, all war whoops simmer down as a lone bell rings for the brave Indians to depart. For now they must change tents for the next eight periods, only to return once more when the sun rises on Wigwam 101.

ARLENE BACH

deutsch's devil dancers

Our legend has been one of many journeys throughout the Weequahic wigwam. By the ray of the sun, we first pitched our tent with Be-Bop Bernstein in Teepee 308. Barbara Swift was chosen to keep the tribal records while Shelly Bass, Seymour Goldstein, Joe Knapp, and Barbara Rosen were learning the basic steps.

Breaking camp, we left for the auspices of ample Applejack Archer. The graceful dancing dolls Elaine Fidel, Carol Jacobs, Myrna Hildebrandt, and Lorraine Vick joined us as junior tribesmen. Mendy Morein and Bernice Sokolov, our band Miss, filled 117's places around the heap-big Council fire where they dutifully upheld the traditions of the rhythmic Devil Dancers. Meanwhile Jerry Vogel, Ben Wolfe and Errol Meisner practiced swinging the tomahawk on the baseball diamond to insure a performance on the field of battle worthy of our tribe's perfection.

Then we took our biggest step which was into our senior year, and moved once again. We landed in Devil Dancer Deutsch's "Typee." Now located in 201, we appointed Len Wallen and Red-on-Head Mel Duchin as Councilites. Jimmy Sorger, as chief Sport Shop, kept Ben Wolfe-boy's water wing exhibitions in the Calumet sport spotlight. Medicineman Richie Goldman kept Marcia Kirsch and Elaine Weissman supplied with awakening pills to make the 8:30 arrival each morning a little more certain, while Leon Mercur, Harold Eisen, and Sandy Kraus required quieting pills to keep their dynamic personalities in check. As Carol Cohen returned from the mechanical running brook each morning after swallowing her pink pill she inevitably saw Matty Kurzrock and Sheila Mayer engaged in private conversation about what's new with who, when, and where.

Arnie Gold spent many a morning recounting his basketball exploits to Harriet Pierson, Veronica Baffige, and Robert Hudzina, who were more or less interested.

That was our homeroom and thus will we remember it always.

We went through our primary steps with much personal satisfaction but our most important steps have yet to come.

RICHARD GOLDMAN

birnbaum's blackfeet

Bruce Cohen, who is first to arrive at 8:00, officially opens the small lunchroom for Period Minus One; he is closely followed by Kathe Klatzko at 8:10. Dick Heller, also a dawn riser, is running the gauntlet in the office on "Big Chief Bowerman's Bench."

In our second homeroom, the early morning tete-a-tete begins at about 8:15. Sitting around the pile of smouldering chem labs can be found: Ann Mittler, Fran Greenberg, Carol Cohen, Elaine Davis, Frank Koppelman, Dave Berger, Sara Kimelman, Helen Kruk, and Shelly Tenenbaum, (recently claimed by N.C.E. warrior), all discussing the news that merits discussion at 8:15 in the morning.

Of course, this dissemination of smoke signals is continued as we adjourned to our "Technical Teepee," so that later arrivals such as Marty Stein, Janyce Pelzman, Sandra Weisholtz, Vic Schnee, Barbara Emin, and Marilyn Lilien can share in the benefits. One of them may even have a heap big equation!

As Señora Squaw Birnbaum (feet freshly scrubbed) pounds mightily upon desks and heads, order is restored. Bucking braves Howie Schwartz, Harvey Morginstin and Bobby Lynn are quickly subdued when Señora Squaw goes on the warpath.

A slight interruption in the reading of the notices by Chief Allen Meisner occurs, as foreign tribe members rush in to give Calumet Material to Merle Osterweil, Joel Kampf, and Blanche Tillis.

The peaceful reading around the fire is once again dimmed by the Coffee Clutches, conducted by the various tribe members. In one corner of the room we find Dianne Aldridge and Carole Evangelista, while squaws Gayle Krich, Kaye Tapper, and Marlene Neuss are smoking the peace pipe elsewhere.

The important notices have finally been completed, and Señora Squaw is about to make a most vital announcement, when our two late warriors, Martin Cohen and Shirley Cook innocently enter.

A heap big commotion follows, and when the bell rings at last, our braves and squaws leave their happy hunting grounds, filled with the thought that "Teepee 207" will always remain the wonderful noisy nuthouse it is!—at least, until June, '55.

MERLE OSTERWEIL

ostrin's osages

The fifteenth day of the ninth full moon, in the nineteen hundred and fifty second year of the great father saw our assemblage in pedagogue Pinkerton's pueblo. Midway in this trying year of settlement, our laudable leader was replaced by chief Goen, a mighty squaw, strict, but respected by all.

Our adjustment period ended. We spent our summer fishing, swimming, and hunting, and returned rejuvenated, to face an eventful third year under our returned chief, Pedagogue Pinkerton.

We in Pinkerton's pueblo chose Bill Krim and Muriel Reider to represent us around the council fire, and the tribe elected our own village's Bette Loebel as tribe scribe.

Come 3A, Muriel Reider and Dan Herman took their places around the council fire. Bette served well and retained her position as scribe for the rest of our stay in High School. Bob Werbel was elected to the high position of Sagamore Judge, and Jackie Matten was named as a member of the Grand (O.B.A.) Council.

At the start of our fourth year, we were placed under the careful tutelage of Mr. Solomon P. Ostrin, under whom we took the name of Osages. The senior tribal seats were filled by Bob Werbel and Muriel Reider, who held it for the remainder of the year.

You have heard our legend up to today, so now let us look at our typical morning.

All are anxious for the day to begin, but none so much as Stuart Spier, our Wampum Keeper, who opens the village gates at 7:30. By 8:25 order reigns in the village. (There should be order, for only four people are present.) Richard Sommer busily reviews his stenography homework, Anne Kozodoy feverishly fills in the blanks of her crossword puzzle, and Sondra Josephs is busily occupied, putting the news of the day on various vacant desks.

Sue Rosenzweig wastes no time in scurrying from desk to desk, collecting 10 pieces of wampum for the next Calumet, and there are Marty Gelfand, Marty Green, and Jay Klugman discussing last night's sports results, while in another corner Eleanor Gourvitz and Rona Goldfinger discuss other results of last night.

In that huddle of confusion are Jane Knopf and Bev Karan copying Anita Wasserman's labs. Bev Tiplitz, L'Vera Varlamos, Carol Kresch, and Adrienne Harris hastily fix the damages this last minute rush has caused to their war paint. Our literary expert, Anita Marshall, simply must finish a book every three home room periods.

There seem to be a few braves missing, but as we look outside the wigwam, we soon see our squaw scouts, Bob Reback, Ed Winokur, and Jerry Corwick, not letting a single pretty squaw escape their glances.

Maxine Rubin tries to catch up on her last 40 winks, while Eleanor Newcorn is delighted to see the teepee flap open and a fraternity pin enter, followed closely by Carol Lieberman. Big Sol Ostrin is frantically trying to read the minutes before the 8:40 smoke signal goes up, but he gives up when Marv Pinkowitz and Joel Feinstein inject their bits of early morning humor that really shakes up the class.

Brings back great memories, doesn't it?

hirsch's hopis

We, the young papooses of the Weequahic Annex, had at last reached the Wigwam on the hill. Bewildered and a bit frightened, we entered teepee 233, and were met by Chief Dina A. Hirsch. Under our chieftain's expert guidance, many moons have passed smoothly and successfully.

In 3B, Francine Jonas was elected chief warrior of the Hopi tribe. Since then, the peace pipe has been handed down to Rhoda Strauss, who still holds this significant honor. Our faithful scribes have been Lila Prager, Judy Reed, and Teresa Cereste, who is our present sender of smoke signals.

The warriors of our tribe, Howie Edinger, Murray Shereshewsky, Howie Hatoff, Bob Wolff, and Marshall Levine, are usually engaged in a secret pow-wow in the back of the room.

There is a small gathering of Squaws, composed of Judy Reed, Sandy Rems, Stellie Rosenbaum, and Phyllis Vail, whooping it up around Rhoda Hoffman's campfire. Wilma Michael, Lori Weiss, and Vida Eisenberg enter and add to the general squack.

A few smoke rings emerge from another campfire where Sandy Furst, the first to capture a warrior, is in conference with Bev Cohen, Geri Rosenberg, Iris Wasserman, Sylvia Levinson and Bevie Sorkin.

At this point, Helen Youngberg and Matilda Van Pelt can be seen breathlessly dashing in.

Amidst all this chaos, Lila Prager and Bernie Hammel are making a desperate attempt to collect wampum for tribal ceremonies. Fran Jonas is valiantly attempting to encourage the purchase of Calumets, the tribal gossip tablets. Above all the noise, Chief Hirsch is valiantly pleading for order, while Marty Mack is anxiously waiting at the door for the bell. At its familiar chime, a cloud of dust can be seen rising from the moccasins of Anne Azzolino, Julie Czepielewski, Fran Fallica, and Kay Chordock as they swiftly scurry to first class.

This tale of 214 has been existing for many suns under the judicious leadership of Chief Hirsch. It is because of her wise guidance and aid that we have done so well throughout the years. Soon the various campfires will only be embers—our tribesmen will leave the Reservation and become chiefs in various fields of endeavor, but we will never forget our sagacious chief.

LILA PRAGER
VIDA EISENBERG
WILMA MICHAEL

gobeille's gitchee gumees

It is 8:29½ and Big Chief Gitchee Gume Gobeille opens the flap of the tent to see if any of his tribe is late. As usual, Denny Goldstein is running down the path, and slides in with seconds to spare. After morning exercises, Bob Pearl comes staggering in under a load of daily smoke-signals (newspapers, that is). Pearl Meadow and Rita Fischer, sporting a new hair comb and a broken wrist, respectively, are busy putting on warpaint. Copy-um Gene Beyers is doing homework. Crinoline-girl Enice Seader and Please-Chief-Gobeille-don't-make-me-get-a-late-slip-Anne Rothenberg talk about different braves, while Bet-um Henry Stadler is seeing whether Fleetfoot or Little Bear won yesterday's race. Sharp-shirt Sid Bernstein and Curly-blond Billy Canfield discuss the latest problems, school and/or maidens, while Elliot Sazer and Frenchy Willner have a friendly disagreement over something. Lorraine Cantor, Simone Greene, and Bev Rothstein chatter about developments in their own teepees, at the same time watching Take-um-name Judy Cahn scouting around the tent, trying to find out who's here. I'm-not-here Joel Moskowitz, Long-brave Mel Schwartz, Talk-all-the-time Len Busch, and Agreeable Arnie Drill are having a big pow-pow at one end of the tent, discussing with fervor the idea of revolting and going back to good old tent 109, much to the distress of Lee Beeler and Carol Eshak who are busily attempting to finish homework. Comb-um-hair Joan Lebovitz is doing just that, as Please-don't-hit-my-car-Sharon Katowitz and Guess-what Emily Perichin talk over latest news. Judy Finkel begs the tribe to vote on something, but is met with resistance, especially from Morty Dear, giving his typical comment, "That idea is no good." Joan Schwartz tries to get some wampum from Jarrett Scaratowsky who pleads, "I'll give it to you tomorrow." First-one-to-wear-a-pink-shirt-Jerry Lustig, New-brave Dennis Eisenberg, and Gary Resnick are discussing that item which is replacing the buffalo—the car. A frenzied Chief smiles wearily as he hears the ringing of the passing bell over the tribe's roar.

The braves and maidens take time out from all their activities frequently to say, as we do now, "Thanks, Chief Gobeille, for putting up with our noisy tribe for three years. We'll never forget you or the wonderful times we had in our teepee."

BEVERLEY ROTHSTEIN

jennings' jeronomos

We remember our first happy days at the Big Wigwam, we recall the informality of our all-girl homeroom, and the charm of our wonderful homeroom teacher Miss Schwartz. When we arrived in 2A Miss Schwartz was replaced by Mr. Ostrin.

We enjoyed two eventful terms with our Chief Ostrin, during which time we witnessed the invasion of four young braves, Don Borden, Sheldon Dubow, Hesh Cohen and Ronnie Grossman. That same term we were pleased by Joan Goodman's acceptance on the Twirling Squad and Don Borden's election to the Sagamore Court. Through the years Elaine Hofmann, Gert Steller, Audrey Grossman, and Phyllis Kream took their place as our delegates around the council fire.

Meanwhile we had set up a teepee with our new head, Squaw Jennings; we moved again to our final homeroom 221. The move had the approval of Anita Senders and Lillian Halm, because it meant that their lockers would be so near.

The teepee hums with noise as Jeronomos Barbara Dobbs, Eleanor Papier and Beverly Bank go into a huddle about last night's date. Doris Daun, Arline Yarnold, Harriet Weiser, and Judy Weisman add to the confusion with an intellectual debate about Prom tidbits.

The greatest dream of Calumet agents Fred Cohan and Sandy Lipkin is to collect wampum from Mary Ann Buckworth and Toby Kurtz.

After hours, you can see Dorothy Smook and Sandy Chernoff practicing to be great tennis champs, while Elizabeth Lusthaus dances to the Highland Fling played by our female clarinetist, Ina Spector.

Glancing around the teepee, we can see Beatrice Fleischman, Paula Rubin, and Barbara Cohn going over their last minute homework, as our Secretary Rita Stellar, assisted by Burt Bialos, checks attendance.

Everyone is at his best as we end our trip through 221 and continue on our way carrying with us pleasant memories of the Wigwam on the Hill.

castelluccio's comanches

In September, 1952, Comanches from surrounding territories arrived and settled in Reservation 323, to share their joys and sorrows for three years. Big Chief "Chem Lab," (Mr. C.) indoctrinated us into the daily rituals which we were to follow. We elected Frank Vaccarella as head brave and chose Marcia Chase to count the tribal headdresses each morning. Merle Hirshoren and Marlene Yavner were usually present, but not at 8:30.

During the year everyone studied hard, passed the tribal exams, and proudly became Junior Comanches. Our fame spread and three new Injuns joined our ranks, Bob Brass, Larry Lasher, and Fran Lipman. Elections came around and Jack Greenfeder was elected to the Society of the Orange and Brown. In the Comanche Reservation, the cry of "Wampum" for dues was heard from June Frenchman as she tried to drag it from Butch Gardner, Fred Rivers, Jo Ramos, and Richard Schlafer. Chief "Chem Lab" tried to read the latest messages but was in competition with comedians Herb Lerner and Billy Freedman, who were entertaining Harriet Atlas and Wilma Alexander. Meanwhile, Judy Miller practiced her cheers for Fred Tarnofsky's exploits on the basketball courts and Jack Kapner's football prowess.

Many moons passed and we came to the eventful day when we were Senior Comanches, the highest honor obtainable. But two gray clouds descended upon us: Our address was changed to Reservation 304 and Big Chief "Chem Lab" left us. In his place, came Big Chief Seltzer.

As the tom-tom beat its final note at 8:30, Michelle Lissek and Judy Loss would rush in to the tune of "May I have your attention, please?" They always bore such vital message!

Midway, the Comanches received a great surprise: Big Chief "Chem Lab" came to us, and Marlene Sattler and Jerry Oksman joined our tribe. With this, we packed our belongings and moved to a new Reservation, 302, led by Jim Baer. We again welcomed a new squaw, Eleazer Patrick. "Rams" Markowitz, Pete Valentine, and Mickey Moss kept our Tribe up to date on the latest sports news throughout the region. One day, Al Farbman came in wearing the latest in Comanche haircuts, and received questioning glances from Fred Einstein and Jonny Prinz.

As the year draws to a close, we feel sad about leaving, but will always remember the wonderful days spent in the Great Wigwam-On-The-Hill.

JUNE FRENCHMAN

Undritz's Wigs

High upon the hill of the Weequahic Reservation, rests the mighty wigwam of the Home-room 306 Warriors. For three years, these brave Indians have been under the leadership of Big Chief Undritz. The wigwam's leader is sometimes troubled because her warriors forget the sacred "rules and regulations." Sonny Griff and Norma Garodnick have been late quite frequently because of early morning hunting trips which delay them. Sitting quietly is our champion gum chewer, Mel Schechtman, who has chewed his way to success despite all obstacles. The laughter of our Moon Maidens, Rita Steinmark, Isobel Cohen, Myrna Mintz, and Francine Hollander, greets the warriors each morning as they enter the wigwam.

After all is settled, Wigwam Scribe Elinor Hipscher takes the attendance. Chief Gerry Hodes performs the morning ritual which is followed by the passing of the peace pipe. The happy warriors have been grateful for their years of plenty, and contribute generously to their favorite charities when Jane Marenus appears every full moon. A little spice is added to the daily routine when our favorite reporters, Johanna Grossman, Rozy Abrams and Flo "Do Tell" Schreiber spread the word of the social life here on the reservation.

Warriors Monroe Krichman, Alvin Attles, Harvey Waldman, Chuck Grossman, and Elliott Flicker have led the mighty warriors to fame and victory. Active maiden, Carol Lipis encourages everyone to participate in the reservation's activities.

It is a well known fact that the Indian maidens want to look their best in the presence of handsome warriors, and our wigwam is no exception. Every morning it is a familiar sight to see Rhoda Apfelroth color her nails with the festive war paint, while Natalie Klein combs her hair with her handsome whale tooth comb.

In the background are the mighty musicians: Marshall "Tom" Kolba beats the Tom Tom, and Paul Silverman fiddles away while Monroe Klein sings the familiar chant. Our two leaping bulls, Larry Hatoff and Paul Beck, dance around the room while the sitting bulls Alan Jacobowitz, Stewart Goldfarb, and Norman Sapolnick, watch the festive ceremony. Fair maidens Annette Bersak, Ronni Flax, and Sheila Thomas are too busy to join the ceremony, for they must make the final preparations for the evacuation of the wigwam.

The journey has come to an end, and the warriors must now leave the reservation, but each new moon shall bring back a memory of happy days gone by.

sowers' seminoles

Many moons ago, the Seminoles were assembled under the guiding spirit of Squaw Jennings. But after a year passed, she was called to the Little Wigwam to train a class of young injuns for their entry into Weequahic.

The Seminoles received their new chief, Squaw Sowers, adopted their tribal name, and settled down to their junior year in tent 314. Sundry items like injun embryos in formaldehyde, leaves from the great green forests, and diagrams of the holy body of Bull Frog also shared their home, the Biology room.

When recently we moved to tent 316, we lost Mary Pinkowitz and "Animal" Cohan to the evil spirits; but we were happy to welcome Sherry "Feather" Wilner, Barbara Sydel, Roz Kesselman, and Naomi Stein to our ranks in their stead. Harold Strulowitz is still lonely but making the adjustment.

Since the braves of our teepee are not particularly noted for their punctuality, the truest Indian princess of them all, Toni Bargas, is in a constant turmoil changing absence to tardy, especially for Odell Randolph, Burt Leibenhaut, and Squaws' Delight Bradman, who pay for their procrastinating trip across the prairie with detention.

Robert Goldberg, the little chief of our tribe, attempts the daily notices between Rubin Rabinowitz's announcements from the council of Senior Warriors, which he attends with our majorette Marcia Tannenbaum.

During these routine matters of tribal business, our maiden, Sandi Gardner, is usually engaged in writing air mail letters; Sue Katz, princess of the Argyle, is naturally engrossed in her knitting; and Phyllis Litman, when on time, is buried in a historical novel. Jack Hirschberg beats out a rather questionable mambo on his personal tomtom, the radiator, for the benefit of majorette Marla Meisner and Chief Cheerleader Enid "Butch" Warner, while Fran Selednick of the Mohican haircut and Dave Shachat, connoisseurs of the arts, enjoy his presentation.

Adding to the chaos of the tent is our Squaw of "June Mad," Carole Baumgarten, who wanders about looking for likely readers of the Times, always managing to forget Henry Goldbaum who is fascinating Mel Leibowitz with his veterinary talks. Chiefs of the highways, Stan "The Man" Weiner, Nick "Dentyne" Nazar, and Paul Trinker, are in a huddle about the latest on the prairies; Blanche Rothstein and Carol Levitt repair their make-up and discuss the benefits of the latest scalp treatments, while all Phyllis Lipson wishes to do is keep warm and is quite vocal complaining about the low blaze of the campfire. Ann Keefer and Dorine Cohen are partners in Calumet and are frequently involved with circulation staff matters.

Teepee 316 was the greatest!

to have or not to have

We have no darling, we have Dear,
We have no pencil, just Papier;
We have no iron, only Brass,
And no mackeral, just Mack and Bass.
We have no grass, just Busch and Moss,
We have no gain but just a Loss,
We have no hunting, just a Chase,
We need no city for Karney's place.
We have a Meadow, but no plain,
We have a Frenchman, but no Spain
We have Rivers and no stream;
We have no coffee, but we have Kream.
We have no purple, just Gold and Green,
We have a Prinz, but have no queen.
We have a Daun, but not a night,
Our Wolf and Katz and Baer don't bite.
We have an Atlas, not a map,
We have no wool, but just a Knapp.

We have a Reider, but no book,
And we've a Miller and a Cook.
We have no horse, our Colt's a girl,
We have no ruby, just a Pearl.
We have a Gardner who doesn't till,
We have no chisel, just a Drill.
We have no teller, just a Bank,
And our Furst is not a rank.
We have a Lerner who doesn't teach,
And we'll see how far our Barr can reach;
We have a Swift, we are not slow,
Our Einstein is so smart, you know.
No Brahms but Chopin, Strauss, and Bach,
And we have one Valentine in stock.
We have no cotton, we have Flax,
Our Borden makes no drinks, relax!
We have no style just a class,
And we're proud of each lad and lass!

our picnic

Sunny weather is essential to a picnic's success. For this reason, the misty atmosphere of June 23, 1954 was disturbing to 3A students of Weequahic High. We had been eagerly anticipating good weather and a successful class picnic for said June day, and we were disappointed when the sun played hide and seek with us.

We arrived in school in appropriate picnic attire, hoping that despite the rain we would be able to have the picnic. The Picnic steering committee met in Mrs. Pinkerton's homeroom, discussed the weatherman's prediction for the day, and finally voted that though rain, snow, sleet, or storm might prevail, the 3A Picnic would be held.

By bus and by car, we arrived at Echo Lake Park. The weather cleared and the sun, seeing the fun we were having, finally joined the party.

Gallant Bob Werbel rowed Mrs. Pinkerton, sunhat and all, completely around the lake. In fact, we all enjoyed the rowing, baseball, soccer, and picnic-type refreshments so much! Sports spotlight of the day centered around a game of jumprope; the participants were Mrs. Sowers, Mrs. Rous, and Mr. Epstein. No one partook in the swimming—that is, no one except 4B, Jay Rosen.

After a glorious, fun-filled day, little droplets of perspiration began to fall from the heavens. We decided that even though Jay Rosen was soaked, we did not care to join him in his moist state.

We ran for our means of transportation back to civilization and departed from a wonderful class picnic.

acknowledgments

There is no doubt that the extra curricular activities of the Wigwam play an essential role in our lives. Most of the work to further these activities is done by the students themselves, but none would be possible without the aid and guidance of our teachers.

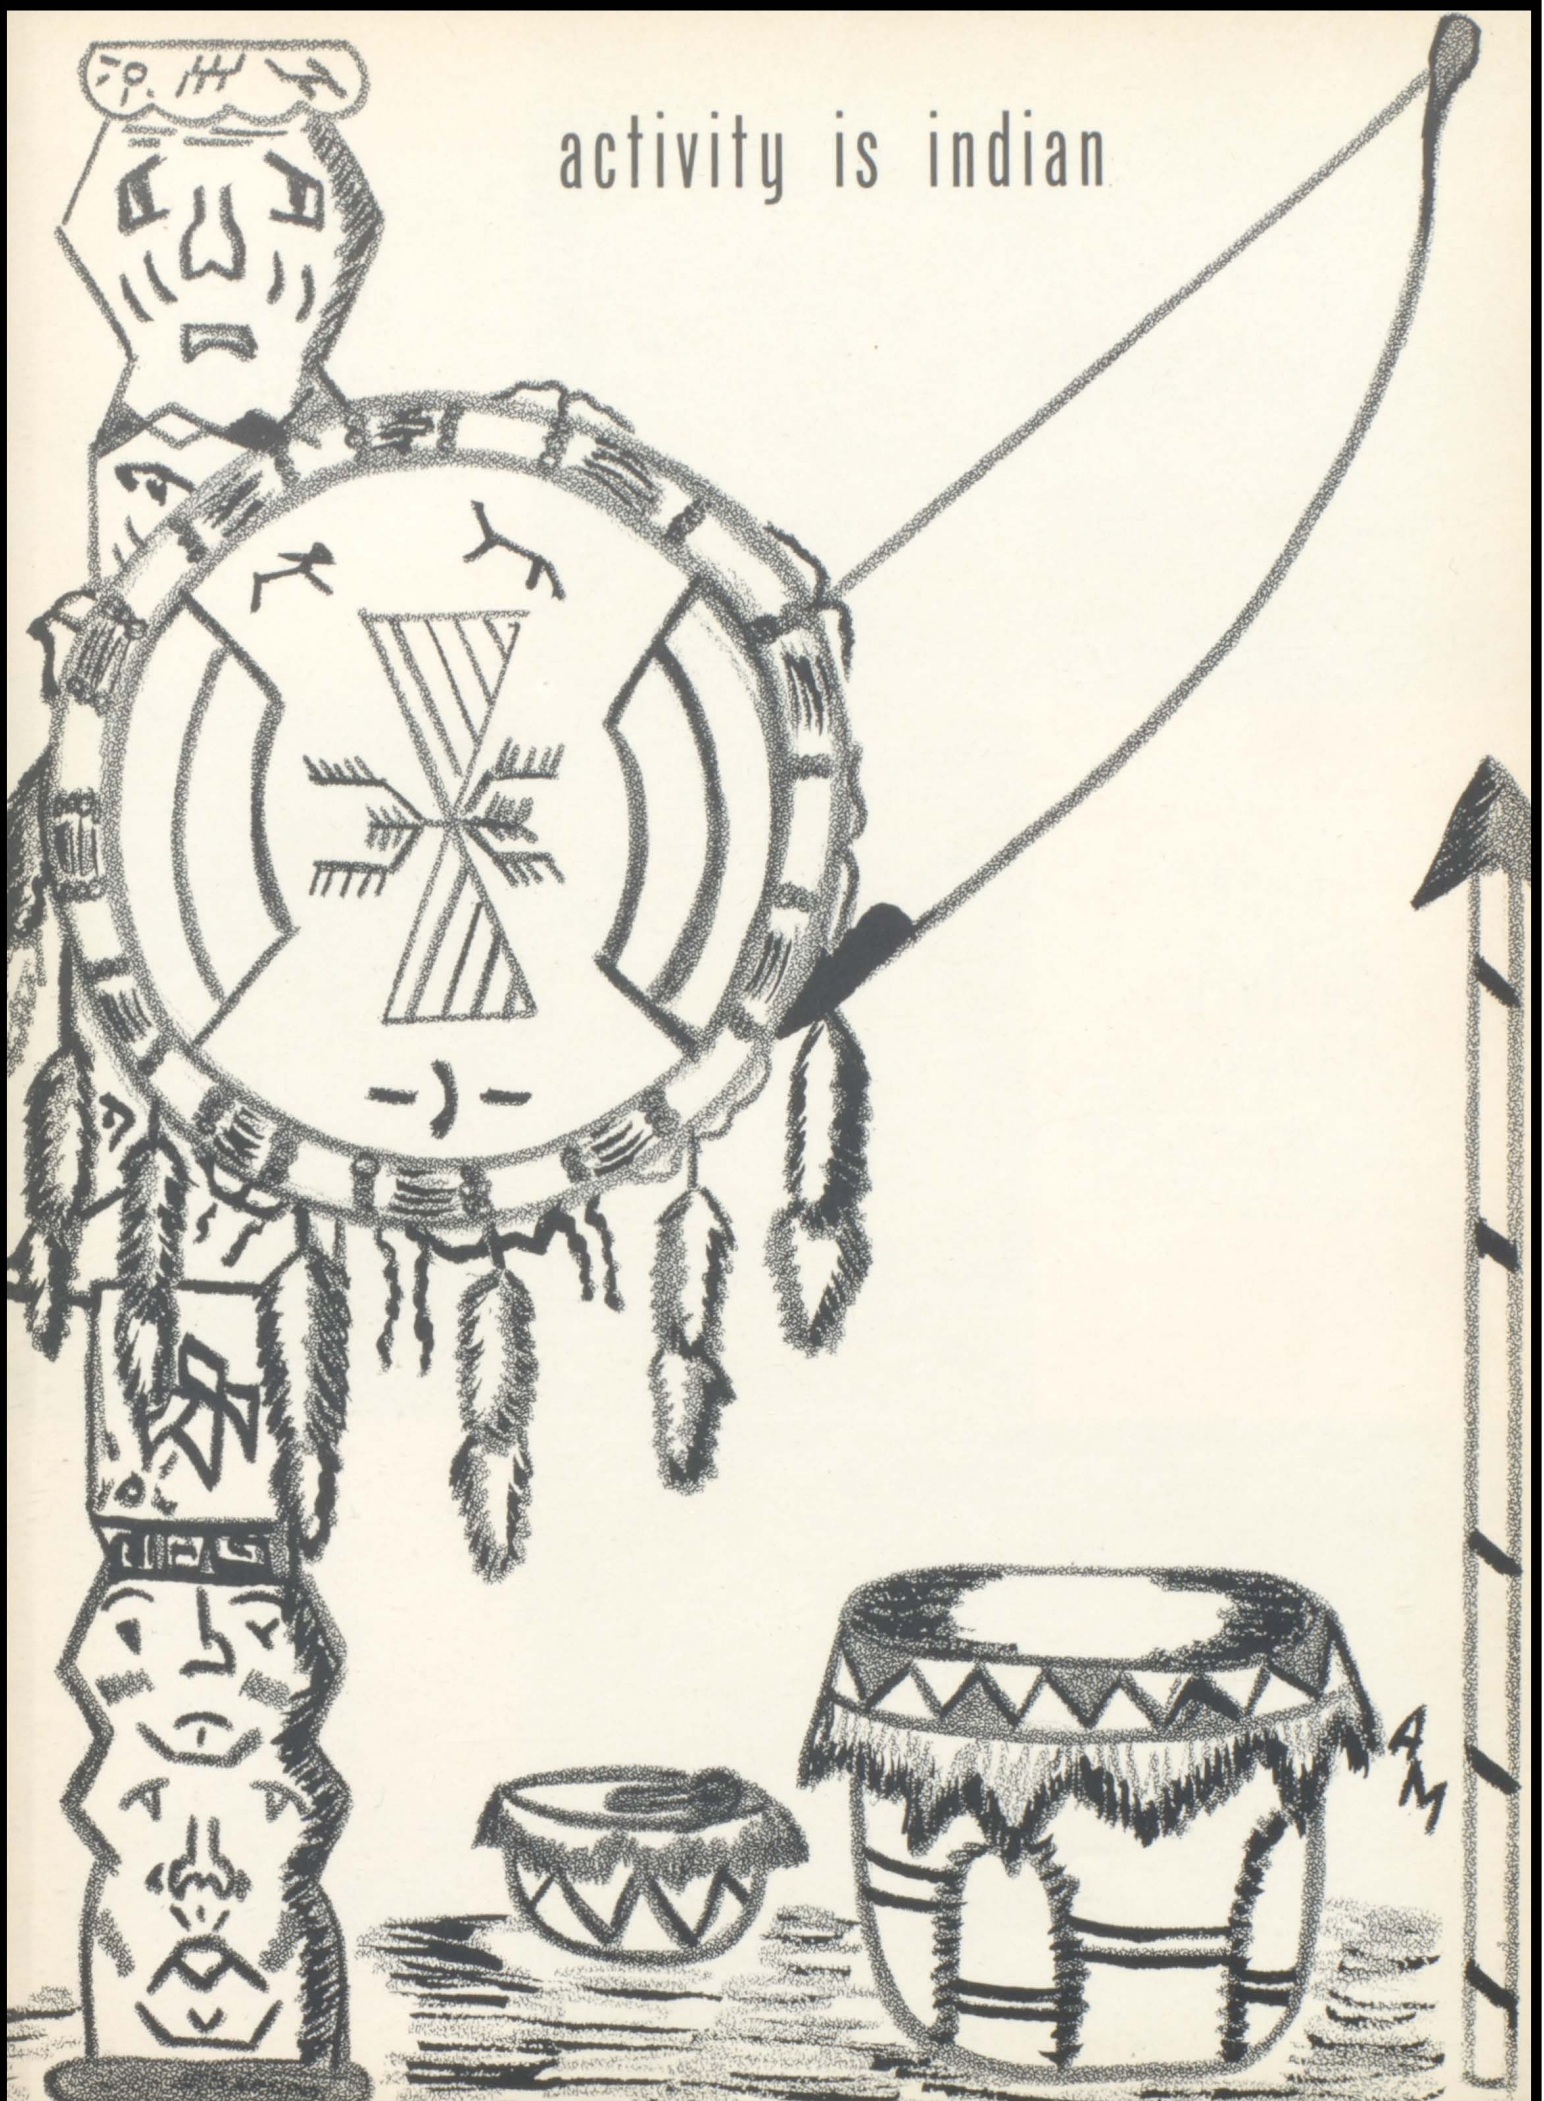

We offer our thanks to Mrs. Rous, our adviser, for helping us to gain the opportunity of becoming the first class in the history of Weequahic High School to hold its graduation in a large auditorium outside the school; and to Mrs. Birnbaum for so ably assuming the burdensome task of being Financial Adviser to our class.

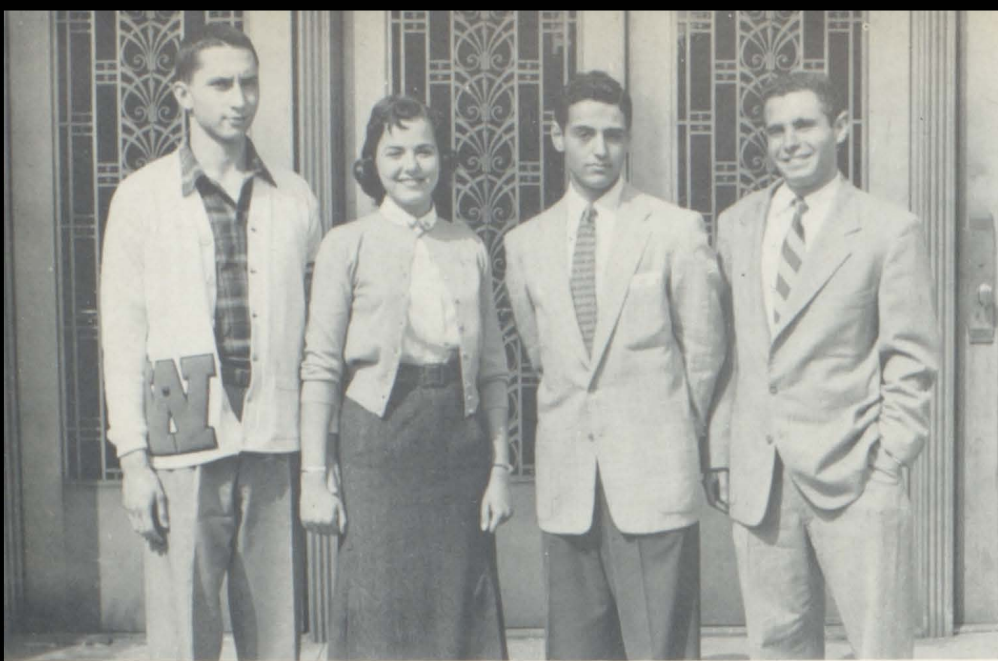

We are especially appreciative for the help given us in our class events, each one of which was a brilliant success. So THANK YOU.

Mr. Bucharest, Mr. Blank, Mr. Ostrin, and Mr. Gobeille for a highly successful production of "June Mad," our play . . . Mrs. Pinkerton, for making the day of our Picnic at Echo Lake an unforgettable one . . . Mr. Ostrin and Mrs. Saltman for the most perfect Hop any class could hope to have . . . Mrs. Jennings and Mr. Hofer for two thrilling Torch Days . . . Mr. Bucharest, in eager expectancy of what we are sure will be a memorable Prom.

Our thanks also go to Mr. Gobeille, who was in charge of our Legend Advertising Staff. And a great big Thank You to Mr. Gross, whose patience and aid made this Legend possible.

The wind is getting stronger now,
And leaves are falling slowly down;
Pastures which once knew the plow,
Are quiet, clothed in leafy gown.
The trees in funeral grief,
Etched in skies of frosty blue;
And here and there a clinging leaf
Remembers glories that it knew.
The dark rich fields are now at rest,
The harvest's done; no more to reap.
Earth has given all her best
And weary soil is lost in sleep.
Though quietly they dormant lie
In spring they will once more awake.
Young sprouts will spring unto the sky,
And trees their new formed leaves will shake.

Football

In spite of placing fifth in the city league, our football squad had an eventful season. Although the season had a few rewards, it was brought to a thrilling climax with our second straight victory over the Maroon and Gray of Hillside, on Thanksgiving. To the down-hearted Indians this brought great joy, since it was the second victory in twenty years on "Turkey Day."

The Class of June '55 was represented by some outstanding ballplayers. The parade was led by Alvin Attles, our All-County end. Al's great pass receiving, running, and brilliant place kicking made him one of the greatest ends in Weequahic history. The line was led by two hard charging guards, Bill Krim and Harvey Waldman. Harvey, who received honorable mention on the All-City Team, played a terrific game, at both offense and defense, against Hillside. Bill, a good blocker and sure tackler, was sorely missed during the last half of the season, due to an injury received in the Barringer game.

The backfield was headed by our outstanding field general and great passer Monte Krichman. He was joined by the hard running full-back Chuck Grossman, who also did a great deal of the punting; and Jack Kapner served as a better than average line-backer, who also, when necessary, relieved Krichman at quarterback.

Dave Matthews and Jay Klugman were the two reliable utility men in the line and backfield respectively.

Our hard luck, hard working, injured "Injuns," included Jack Greenfeder, Bob Lynn, and Bob Goldberg; all of whom sustained injuries during the first game. Our closing record of two wins, five loses, and one tie, might have been different had we the services of these boys.

All in all, it was a season of surprises, disappointments, successes and failures. However, we must remember the patience and hard work of head-coach Lou Stamelman and his three assistants; Bill Horey, Andy Zupko, and John Sabo.

Our powerful basketball squad finished second in the city league with a 7-3 record. Our only losses in the race for city championship coming from Central once and West Side twice.

We easily defeated Barringer, South Side, and East Side twice each, and Central once, in city league competition. We thoroughly trounced Hillside, concluding our winning streak.

We then lost to Perth Amboy by two points, Saint Benedict's by one point, Montclair and Thomas Jefferson.

Because of our outstanding performances on the hardwood, we were seeded seventh in the Essex County Tourney, where we beat Bloomfield, but succumbed to Orange in the Quarterfinals.

Our season's record probably would have been better, had it not been for the loss of Captain Al Attles at mid-season.

Al, our All-City Center, was high point-scorer on many occasions, and his mighty frame dominated the backboards, as he snared rebound after rebound.

Fred Tarnofsky, our lanky forward, was proficient in his onehanded shot from the outside. He was rarely known to miss a foul shot.

Vic Schnee and Walt Karney completed the starting five.

Vic's driving layup, and playmaker Karney's outside shot added up valuable points that put us high in the win column.

Joel Moskowitz's height copped him many rebounds, while Ed Winokur and Monty Krichman added depth to the team, and could be relied upon to do their best whenever called upon.

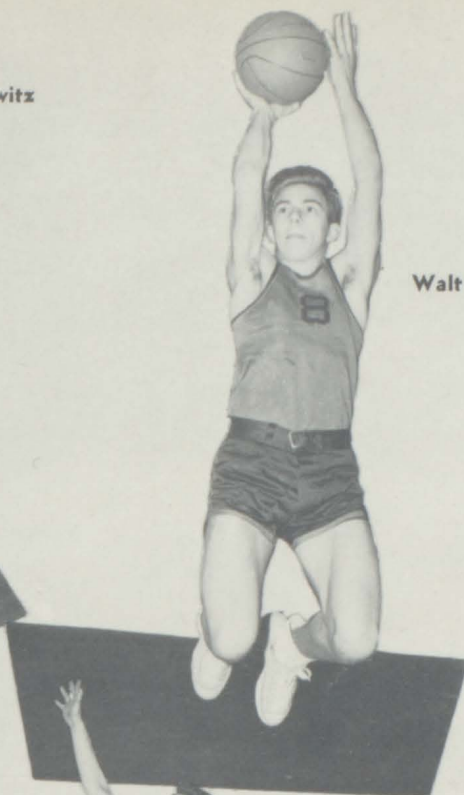

Hal Strulowitz served well as a soph, and junior, but unfortunately was lost to us this season.

After a very successful '54 season, the Indian Squad is expecting at least the same good fortune this season.

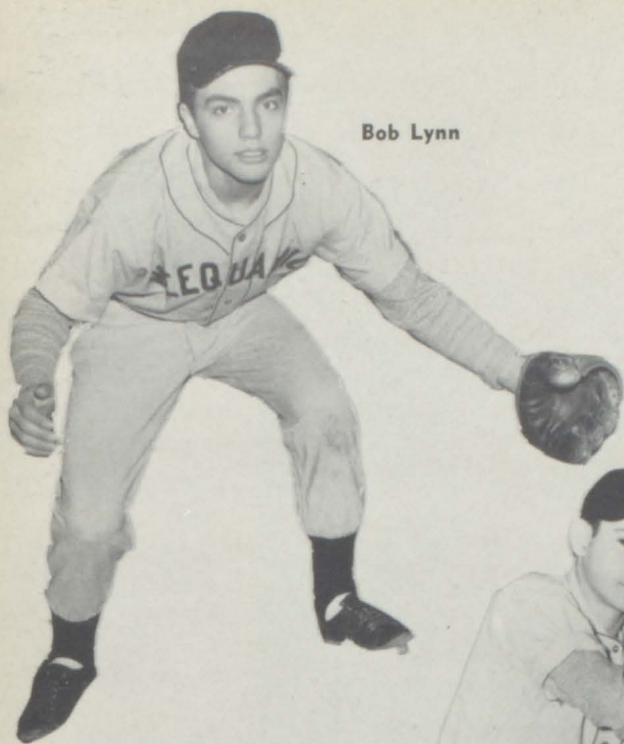

Mr. Meyer "SPIKE" Schwartz, serving capably in his third season as coach finds most promise in the pitching staff, led by our speedy co-captain Monty Krichman, and reliable Len Busch.

The infield will be centered around co-captain Jerry Vogel at third base, and Joel Moskowitz at first. Bob Lynn and Harold Strulowitz will comprise the other infield positions.

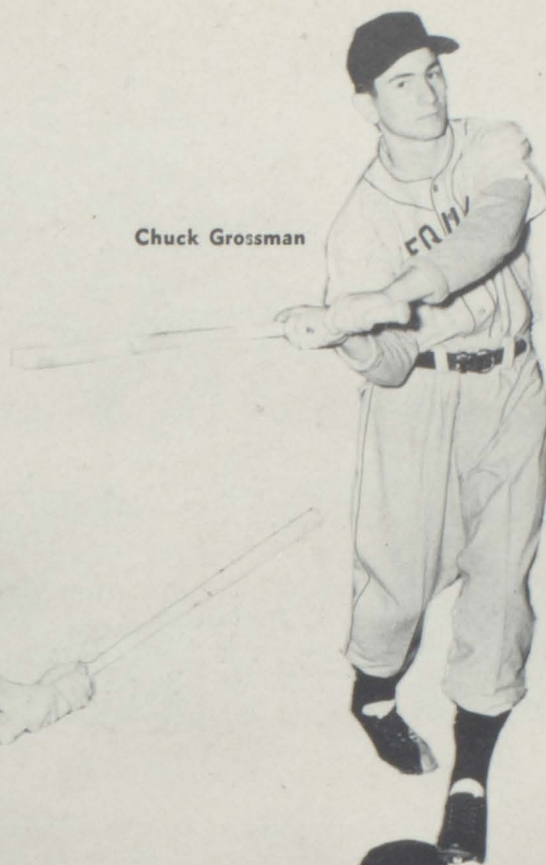

The outfield, well covered by Errol Meisner, Ben Wolfe, and Chuck Grossman completes the senior aggregation that put the Indian Nine high in the contention for the City Title.

track

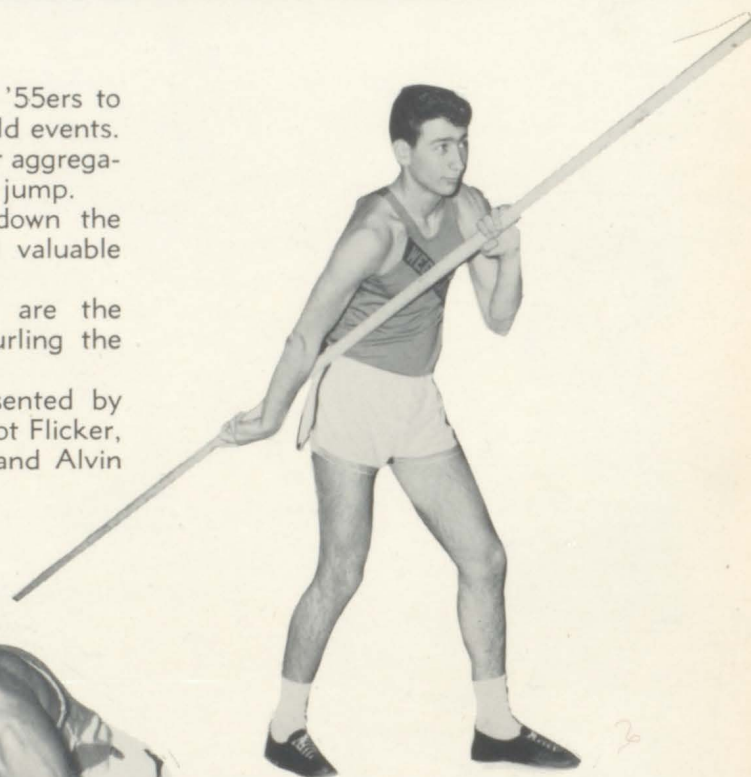

The experience contributed by the June '55ers to this season's track team lies mainly in the field events.

The only returning letterman to the senior aggregation is Odell Randolph, who excels in the high jump.

Versatile Jack Kapner securely holds down the position as first pole vaulter, and will add valuable points in the sprints.

Jack Greenfeder and Morris Gardner are the braves' mainstays in the weight events, hurling the shot, javelin and discus.

On the cinders, we will be well represented by Hank Stadler in the hurdles, Fred Cohan, Elliot Flicker, and Bruce Cohen in the middle distances, and Alvin Attles, our long distance runner.

The natators had an extremely successful season, under the tutelage of their newly acquired coach, Walter Eisenberg.

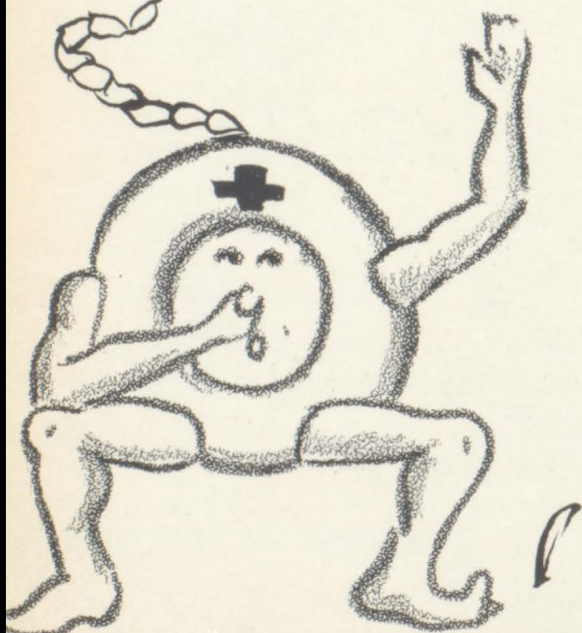

Led by Captain Bob Werbel, the team beat East Side, Central, South Side, and Arts High each twice, and split 1-1 with West Side. In the City Meet, our natators placed a close third behind East Side and South Side.

Herb Lerner was a valuable backstroker in his sophomore year, placing sixth in the city meet, and earning enough points to win a letter. However, because of a leg injury, he was unable to participate in his junior and senior years.

Leo Willner, a fine breaststroker, placed fifth in the City Meet as sophomore and was on the third placing medley relay team. This year, he swam in the breaststroke leg of the medley relay team that placed second in the City Meet.

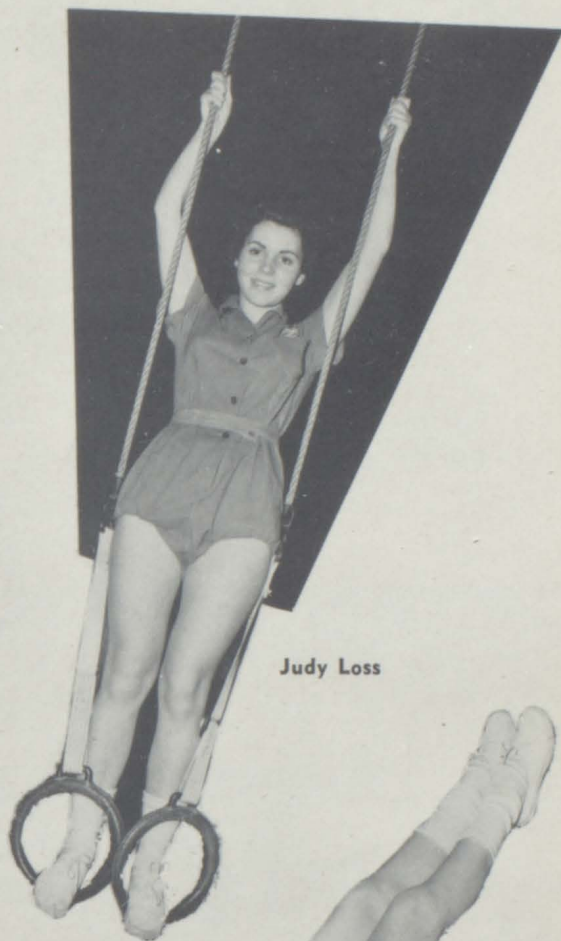

Ben Wolfe swam the forty yard freestyle, hundred yard freestyle and was on the freestyle relay team that placed third in the City Meet.

Bob Werbel, this year's captain, won his letter as a junior, also winning two medals in the City Meet, for the places taken in the 100-yard backstroke and the backstroke leg of the medley relay. This season, he was on the second placing medley relay team, and, along with being Weequahic's representative to the State Meet at Princeton, is the Newark 100-yard-backstroke City Champion for 1955.
